The Bombay Gazette.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1872.

IF even a small account were written of the past and present of Bombay Presidency, a most amusing, if not an instructive, volume might be born of the Press. We should go back and forward from the time of the Great Mogul to the reign of Victoria, and in doing so we should in an epitomised form learn something of history and be reminded of the great change in politics and manners which have occurred since the early Greek and Roman tenters stirred up the envy and cupidity of the ancients, and made them long for conquest for the mere greed of riches. But while we might interest the reader with tales of classical mythology, and make him curious as we recounted the deeds of the Assyrian Queen when she went forth with her millions of armed men in the hope of drawing the dusky Rajah Stabrobales in his reed canoe, we are forced to stop the quick gallop of our pen lest we should exceed the bounds which the printer's devil has assigned to those who print in newspapers the doings of the day and hour in which we live. Long as we have been in Bombay, we have never heard of a lecture being given upon the crowds of people who must be amused, and who have no idea of greatness beyond the trappings of past and present of this island. People have not time to dip deep into Herodotus, or the Periplus, or to read up Hugh Murray, with the view of making themselves acquainted with the ancient and modern history of India. The subject of Hindoostan, its "vicissitudes, grandeur, and humiliation," would afford room for fifty lectures, and the Island of Bombay alone is connected with so many matters which relate to commerce, sovereignty, and social advancement, that materials are not wanting to furnish a lecturer with plenty of subjects for a series of instructive discourses. The Bombay of to-day in its external appearances has become perfectly changed. Frere Town has sprung up and our ramparts have been swept away, old residents who have been absent five or six years can hardly recognise the city, and in the course of a few years we ourselves, should we leave this city and return, will find greater changes. The bamboo and clay hut are fast disappearing, and jowlee bungalows are growing vulgar. But the great spirit of change and enterprize which is converting wooden houses into stone mansions becomes almost insignificant when compared with the sudden alteration in custom, manner, and feelings. In fact, everything is metamorphosed, and modern Bombay, in etiquette, in usage as to trade operations, and in its enhanced rate of general prices, has jumped into a new system by a sudden spring instead of growing up to a new status by the conventional, jog-trot which, even if slow, generally lands a traveller safely at last in applepie order. That Bombay has rapidly changed in its shape and size wants no demonstration. That its market rates are increased and novel we learn from the quotation lists, and that it has undergone a perfect revolution in feeling we gather from the very irrefutable fact that old friendships are rapidly passing away and a snobbish kind of half acquaintance springing up in their stead.

The march of intellect has not been lost upon the Civil Service, and from its senior members to its last imported competition-wallah, we see the glimmering light of a new period of undignified saving. This is an important variation in Bombay's interior economy; and it reflects no credit on those who, adopting the idol-worship of rupees, suspend or cast off those good old hospitable habits that wedded society into a happy brotherhood. It was only yesterday that the civilians of this Presidency bent the knee to the molten calf, and worshipped at the shrine of wealthy soucars. But "Backbays" went down to zero, "Elphinstones" fell, and Bank stock slided down from a fictitious and high value to a ruinous and depreciated price. The reaction was sharp and immediate. The table of precedence had been reversed by a kind of sudden, silent, and universal consent. But the circle of fortune revolved, and down went cotton, Bank shares, and reclamation stock; with them fell the great and new high-stool aristocracy of Bombay. The delicacy of sentiment of the great Bombay service official was restored to him, and by the electric shock of widespread insolvency, he was wired back into his originally assumed state of exclusiveness. But the transient and false days through which Bombay passed are still so fresh, and recent that the striking likenesses and occurrences which might be drawn of them had better be left undrawn.

We do not advocate a statu quo policy for this Presidency, but we deprecate the violent leaps which Bombay has been forced to make—plunges which have only ended in steeping this city in debt, poverty, and commercial distress. Even now as the strains of martial music are heard, and guns proclaim the advent of the Viceroy, while guards of honour present their arms to Raos, Rajas, and Chiefs, and flags make gay public places of resort, there exists serious depression. When we get rid of the mimicry which now exists and when the share merchant who has been personating the man of capital shall have been remanded back to his original position, we shall expect to see prosperity again visit this island. There is too much alienation of feeling between Englishmen; and the estrangement thus produced between the children of our one common soil is observed by the natives of this land, and helps very largely to diminish that healthful respect which we won in an earlier day in this country when a white face was a password to that communion of united interests which bound man to man and made the whole English race in Hindoostan vie with each other in firm attachment to the Throne. Surely a sketch drawn very faithfully of the present state of small feelings and big folly which exists in the Presidency on this subject alone would awaken interest, and without being pointedly or individually addressed to one particular person, might yet place certain imaginary bigwigs before a mirror which would reflect an image that they could not disown. Comparisons are odious, but a view of Bombay in all its features, past and present, would be highly valuable. It might be well if some one would place before us in a light and instructive form the changes that have occurred, not only in legislation, commerce, politics, and buildings, but also that grand revolution in social feelings, manners, and customs, which have made the Bombay of to-day so very different from what it was even so recently as ten years ago.

A WEEKLY contemporary observed the other day, on beholding the excitement which prevailed among all classes at the approaching visit of the Queen's Viceroy to our city, and the great efforts made to accord him as imposing reception as the wealth of our citizens could afford, that we were probably doing too much to signalize an event which ought rather to be regarded as a matter of course. The Viceroy is coming in one sense to his own, and in the discharge of an obligation, which many may regard as having been only too long postponed in the exclusive favour of another Presidency. As the Governor-General of the Empire of India, it is meet and right that he should, on occasions, hold his Viceregal Council at each of the three Presidencies, the local Governors of which are, individually, ex officio members of that Council, and in the step which Lord Northbrook has taken to-day the people of Bombay are called on to see nothing more than a simple discharge of duty, requiring no pretentious recognition. But it can hardly be expected that a groaning and rigorous community like that of Bombay will for a moment consent to suffer an event which carries with it so significant an acknowledgment of the claims of this Presidency to pass by without an outward expression of the great satisfaction we all must, and do feel, commensurate as much with the importance of that event as with the substantial weight of the city itself. As the principal representative of Bombay, Sir Philip Wodehouse has been judiciously lavish in all the arrangements which he has made for the occasion, and few know, probably, how largely he has personally contributed to their direction. All grades of the service which have had to assist in either a large or a small way in the arrangements have felt his influence, and we understand that the selection of the striking and picturesque situation in which the encampment of the Chapter has been pitched is due to the Governor's taste. The Council Meeting we pass over as not signifying much more than the consummation of the official theory, that it is as competent for this city to have a Viceregal Council as the traditional "Capital of India"; and, in connection with it, we need only give expression to a hope, which has every chance of realization, that the Governor-General of India will henceforth periodically reside in this city, and give to it those advantages which would be inseparable from such a proceeding. The force of circumstances, and the impulse of an elevated and catholic understanding have, at last, brought to our long-neglected city that recognition of its important position in the Empire which we are all of us enjoying to-day. Let us all unite in welcoming as joyously, nay

The following is the official programme of the ceremonial to be observed at the investiture of Her Highness the Begum of Bhopal and the Hon. Mr. John Strachey with the insignia of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India this afternoon :—

On Saturday, the 16th of November 1872, at 4 o'clock P. The Secretary will next report that the sole business before the Chapter is the investure of Her Highness the Begum of Bhopal, and the Hon. John Strachey, under the Sovereign's Warrants. The Secretary of the Order and the Under-Secretary will then withdraw from the Chapter in order to receive Her Highness the Begum of Bhopal. On arrival, Her Highness will be met at the entrance of the centre street by the Secretary of the Order and the Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department, who will conduct Her Highness to the entrance of the Chapter Tent, where Her Highness will be met by the two Junior Knight Commanders.

"In the name of the Queen, and by Her Majesty's command, I here invest you with the honourable Insignia of the Star of India, of which Most Exalted Order Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to appoint you to be a Knight Commander."

When the admonition is concluded, the newly-invested Knight will be conducted to the table, where he will sign the promise required by the Statutes of the Order. This done, he will be led to his seat, and all present will resume their seats.

The Secretary will then represent that there is no further business before the Chapter, and the Grand Master rising will command him to declare the Chapter dissolved.

THE VICEROY AT KURRACHEE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

KURRACHEE, 10TH NOVEMBER.

THE Viceroy and Governor-General arrived here at half-past twelve yesterday afternoon. The approach of the train was announced by fog signals or detonators, and the commotion created at the Frere Station in consequence may easily be imagined. The visit of so exalted a personage, and he the representative of Her Majesty, to this secluded section of the Great Indian Empire, is not an event lightly to be thought of in these parts. The last and the first honour the Sindhis had paid to them in that way was when the Earl of Dalhousie passed through Kurrachee some twenty years ago, I believe. It was a sight to be witnessed certainly, to observe the myriads at an early hour yesterday morning, wending their steps in the direction of the Frere Station—men, women, and children, of all creeds and castes; rich and poor, high and low; a regular medley; all on the tip-toe of anxiety to see the "Lat saheb," whom they, in their ignorance, fancied to be some extraordinary animal of the genus homo, some one out of the ordinary run of mortals! The concourse that had gathered at the station was immense, and what with people on foot, people on horse and camel back, and people in conveyances of all imaginable descriptions, from the primitive recktah to the pretentious landau, the scene was truly one of "confusion worse confounded." If we could not give His Excellency a right royal reception, one in keeping with his high position, we, at all events, made amends for shortcomings in that way, by giving him an enthusiastic welcome. Much could not, of course, have been expected from Kurrachee. The parched-up aspect of the country, its sandy sterile plains, with nothing worth speaking of in the shape of vegetation to relieve the eye, were all fitting accompaniments to the dry ceremony gone through yesterday. A guard of honor composed of a company of the Belooch regiment, with its band, lined one side of the station, and a company of Jacob's horse the other; when the train stopped the band of the Beloochees struck up the National Anthem; the men presented arms; the Khitsdahs saluted in the military style; a few broken-down Ameers, remnants of a fallen dynasty, paid their respects; the Viceroy, his aide-de-camp, and Sir William Merewether got into a carriage; the carriage drove off, and the assembled multitude, so eager to catch a glimpse of the great man, dispersed, and the tamasha, so far as the Frere Station was concerned, was at an end. I could not help remarking how shabby an appearance the "special" train which brought His Excellency from Kotree wore; had it not been for the Union Jack flying in front of the engine, the train would have been taken for an ordinary one—certainly not one that would have been set apart for the representative of Her Majesty. A more unpretending concern could not have been turned out; however, the most was made of the limited resources at hand, and I dare affirm an old banker like the Viceroy was not particular to a shade! The Frere Station was gaily decorated with bunting, and the Royal standard was kept flying over the workshops. The carriage with His Excellency drove through the grounds of the Frere Hall, both entrances leading to it being arched over, with garlands ornamenting the arches, and so on. The main archway had the words "Dieu vous garde" tastefully introduced into the festoon work. Passing on, the carriage drove to the Commissioner's residence, commonly called "Government House;" here a company of the 65th had formed up as a guard of honour, supplemented by the Artillery, which fired a royal salute. The Commissioner's flagstaff displayed the Royal standard, which was also observed flying on the summit of the Frere Hall. An archway had been erected at the entrance of "Government House," and any quantity of bunting was utilized to add as much of an eclat as possible to the scene, which reminded me very much of a story I read in my boyish days of tinsel and coloured paper doing service for more substantial articles by way of keeping up appearances! Without exaggerating in the least, I can affirm unhesitatingly that, taking the whole of the arrangements made for the purposes of the reception together, a more lame, commonplace "demonstration" it has seldom fallen to my lot to witness. The police arrangements were execrably bad, as was testified to by the rush and the crush at the platform of the Frere Station; pell mell, helter skelter, each and all laid seige to it; the lowest jostled shoulders with the highest, and the scene resembled something like what "bedlam let loose" is generally described to be. The Viceroy, the few minutes he was on the platform, tried to do the amiable the best way he could, but I fancy he was glad enough when he found himself comfortably ensconced in the carriage which whirled him off to "Government House."

Among the officials present on the platform of the Frere Station were Brigadier General Addison, the Collector, the Judicial Commissioner, the Cantonment Magistrate, Major Bonus, the Session Judge, and the Educational Inspector. There were several of the non-official classes also, but no notice would appear to have been taken of them, and they were passed over in the crowd. One of the Meers who did honour to the Viceroy on the occasion was Meer Sher Mahomed, the cœur de lion of the seven rulers who wielded the sceptre over Sind at the time of the conquest. He it was who made so determined a stand against us, and sword in hand led the defending army into the field at Dubba. The poor old man appears to be exceedingly decrepit and in a very weak state of health, and it is a wonder to me how he could have undertaken the fatiguing journey from Hydrabad to Kurrachee. But I have not said much regarding the Viceroy. Well, to cut a long story short, I need but mention that he does not appear to have suffered much from the dengue. The afternoon of Saturday, or, at least, the interval between his arrival and the holding of the levee, was spent by His Excellency at Government House. At four o'clock the levee was held; to call it a levee, however, is simply to apply a misnomer to the formality gone through yesterday of having a few of the leading officials shaking hands with the Viceroy and then retiring. Not a single member of either of the non-official classes was presented, or was allowed the honour of an introduction, although a notification was published in the local papers, informing all gentlemen desirous of being presented that they should send in their names by a certain day; numbers did send in their names, but none of them received invitation tickets! I know a great deal of disaffection has been created among certain classes at the treatment thus accorded to them, and any amount of grumbling and growling has been occasioned in consequence. After the levee His Excellency drove towards the railway station; thence he went to the "palatial barracks," which he had a cursory inspection of. The Steam Bakery was the next object of attraction; His Excellency went all over it, and examined the machinery. Then the Government Gardens were visited.

After this round of drives, His Excellency drove back to "Government House," where, I believe, an entertainment was given in his honour. This wound up the proceedings of Saturday. Sunday being a dies non was religiously observed; His Excellency attended divine service at Trinity Church in the evening.

It is to be regretted that the stay of His Excellency in Kurrachee will be so short; had it been longer his attention could be drawn to a great many things connected with the administration of the Province which sadly need looking into. In the first place there is our water supply question, one of the most vital importance, which has for so long been shelved. Nothing could be easier than to have it clearly represented to the Viceroy, and a promise exacted from him that it will receive his consideration when he returns to Calcutta. A loan could be obtained for the cost of the necessary works, which loan could be repaid in course of time by periodical instalments being contributed towards it, such instalments to be made up by collections realized from water rates.

NEWS-LETTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

RAJKOTE, 10TH NOV.

THE return of the Political Agent to Rajkote was the signal for all the chiefs who meditate a journey to Bombay to meet the Viceroy, to send officials and expresses innumerable. It was quite an excitement hearing the different reports daily. Now H. H. the Jam of Nowanuggur was to go by steamer from his seaport town of Jooria, and was to pay Rs. 30,000 for the trip, but this report came to nothing, because His Highness came to Rajkote last Sunday and left on Monday for Bombay, via Wudwan, where by this time of course he must have arrived and been safely housed in a bungalow for which he is to pay something like Rs. 8,000 or Rs. 10,000 for the month. His newly acknowledged son and heir Kalooba is very ill and cannot attend his father to the grand tamasha in Bombay. Kalooba has lately been blessed with a son, so his chances of the throne of Nowanuggur are greatly strengthened.

Much excitement was caused by the news that the Nawab had sent an express for Dr. Buller. It was feared that he was so ill that he would not be able to attend the Durbar in Bombay, but public feeling was quieted by learning that the Nawab himself was not the cause of the express being sent for our Civil Surgeon, but the Princely Minister (spell this right) Bavoodeen was ill, and required urgent medical assistance. It is even now not generally known how the Nawab is to go to Bombay, but reports lean most favorably to the Veraval route as being the most likely to be taken by His Highness. I hear he has taken a large bungalow on Cumballa Hill. Owing to the train arrangements all the chiefs are bound to take special trains in order to make them arrive in Bombay during the day time, so that Government officials may be able to assist at their reception on arrival in Bombay. The bungalow-wallahs are not the only people who will reap large profits by the Viceroy's visit. The news of the Viceroy being seized with dengue caused a deep sensation of grief to many up here, and some felt it the more, knowing that if there was any delay in the programme of the Viceroy's visit the postponement will be attended with a great additional outlay on the part of the chiefs and others who are down as official participators in the coming tamasha. A most dastardly outrage was committed about a mile from the town of Rajkote. A woman, the wife of a Brahmin, had gone out into the fields and having taken two or three stalks of bajree, was immediately seized upon by a Durbaree sepoy. On her explaining that she had merely taken the bajree to feed the small children with her, the sepoy without any provocation inflicted twenty-two wounds upon her face and person. She was fortunately rescued by a relation chancing to pass that way, on the appearance of whom the sepoy made his escape. The unfortunate woman was conveyed to the hospital and medical aid was at once administered. This is the story as it has been told me—how far the details are true I cannot say, but for the outline I can vouch for as being a fact. It is a fearful thing to contemplate that within a mile of a large and stirring city as Rajkote such a terrible thing should have occurred. No doubt the offender will be brought to speedy justice under the energetic measures instituted by Mr. Mahadew Narrain, the Special Assistant Political Agent in charge of the Rajkote State. This officer has been winning golden opinions by his civility and readiness to mete out equal justice to all classes of the community since his arrival here, and his lines have not laid in easy places—he is desirous of promoting progress in every department, especially in that of the Public Works; but in the present impoverished state of the treasury this is impossible. It is a fact well-known in Rajkote that there was great difficulty in supplying the funds necessary for the visit which the young Thakore is paying to Bombay. This paucity of funds is accounted for by the excessively heavy expenses which attended the Thakore's wedding during the hot season. The accounts of the expenditure have been overhauled and the result is a considerable diminution in the amount originally asked for by the Queen mother; but that lady has no intention of remaining passive under this curtailment of her expenses, and it is understood that she has already urged her objections to the Political Agent on the subject of this lessening of the grant for the marriage expenses. The marriage of the youthful Thakores is always a season of great harvest to the Queen mothers, and the Rajkote lady is not the only one who complains that Government are stingy in the grants awarded for marriage purposes. The Bae of Gondul is very indignant that she cannot give her daughter a more splendid trousseau on her approaching marriage with the Thakore of Bhownugger. This lady also is now quarrelling with Captain Philips, the new Political Assistant in charge of the Gondul State, on the subject of her private Secretary, a son of an old soucar commonly known as "Dovez."

The last month of October has been exceedingly cool and pleasant, the nights quite cold, and presents a favourable contrast with that of last year at this time.

About the races little or nothing is generally known, the only satisfactory intelligence to be given is that the chiefs have subscribed the necessary funds. Some horses belonging to the Gaekwar, which are to run under the name of his soubah, have arrived, but no others. The Gaekwar is not himself coming as was at first supposed, but according to report every race is filled, and so we may hope that we may see some sport at Christmas. Rajkote is again to have a clergyman to superintend the Church services. The Rev. Mr. Walford has been put in orders for Rajkote, visiting Bhooj. Other clerical gup is that the Bishop of Bombay intends making a tour through Kattywar on his way to Bhooj. Colonel Hastings is expected shortly to inspect the artillery stationed here, and about Christmas General Russel is expected to make his annual inspection.

JOUDHPORE, 7TH NOVEMBER.

In my last I mentioned that His Highness the Maharajah, with the Political authorities, was at Aboo, engaged in a consultation about the better administration of Marwar, and I strongly advocated that, as the Maharajah was incapable of governing his territory, the entire control of the State ought to be delegated to his eldest son, Maharaj Konwur Jeswunt Singh. I have heard that the Political Officers have urged the Maharajah to adopt this course, and Maharaj Konwur left this to meet Colonel Brooke, Agent of the Governor-General, at Palee, where, rumour says, at the interview the Maharajah himself was also present, and promised to entrust the entire Government to his son, but upon certain conditions which, I am informed, Maharaj Konwur accepted.

His Highness and his son have returned to Joudhpore, and the Political Officers went on to Ajmeer, and intend proceeding via Agra by rail to Bombay, to be present at the approaching grand Durbar of the Viceroy. Nothing has as yet been definitively settled here, but it is supposed that the Maharajah will in a few days confide the administration to his son, and then many appointments here will, in all probability, be changed.

Owing to the heavy flight of locusts we have had through Marwar grain continues dear: water is plentiful. Fever has laid many low; it still prevails, and many deaths have taken place.—MORE ANON.—Pioneer.

SONGS AFTER SUNSET—No. 9.

I gnash my white teeth in dull rage,
I tear out my curly black hair,
There's a ball on at Government House,
And I am not asked to be there!
Another at Albert Sassoon's,
Grander still than the first I am told,
Yet I—a Plantagenet Jones—
Am omitted—left out in the cold.

Yet I've dressed like a funeral mute
And put on white kids in the day,
And gracefully bowed like the rest
At each gubernatorial Levee.
Oh Sir Philip, pray what have I done,
That Jervoise should thus leave me out?
Ah yes, he is jealous I feel,
Of a handsome man without doubt.

For why should young Smith be invited,
Who is only a junior clerk,
And Briggs who is but a bill broker,
While I am a man of some mark?
There's Tomkins—no beauty, I am sure—
But then he has quite cheek for three,
He is asked to the Scindiah feed,
While Snooks in the Durbar will be.

It isn't so much that I care
To go to the balls—I'm not proud—
But she—the girl I think so fair,
Will be looking for me in the crowd,
And all the young fellows I know—
I hate the conceited whole lot—
Will be there to dance with my love
While I am away from the spot.

It is not that I care to go
For what may be seen and be had,
The supper's always such a crush,
And the Simkin uncommonly bad;
But still I feel quite crushed and low
Because I have not had a card,
While cads by the dozen are asked,
You'll agree that it's certainly hard.

My thoughts are on vengeance intent,
I'll join the ratepayers to-night,
I'll ask how much Government spends,
And by next mail to Argyll I'll write:
I'll call his attention to things
And on instant enquiries insist,
I'll make all those swells rue the day
When they left out my name from the list.

Bombay, 15th November 1872.

BOMBAY.

THE VICEROY'S DURBAR.—We learn that nearly fifteen hundred tickets have been issued for the Viceroy's Durbar to be held to-day.

A SALUTE of 15 guns was fired from the Cooperage Battery, Esplanade, at 11-30 A. M. yesterday on the occasion of the arrival of Sir Richard Temple, member of the Governor-General's Council.

ARRIVAL OF THE HUDSHEE.—Seedee Ebram Khan Bahadoor, the Chief of Junjeera, arrived here on Thursday, and took up his residence temporarily in a bungalow on the Gowallia Tank Road.

A NEW SPINNING COMPANY.—We observe that a new Spinning Company is shortly to be started in Bombay by Messrs. Cursetjee Nusserwanjee Cama, Bomonjee Cursetjee Cama, and Ardasheer Framjee Moos.

THE RANEE OF THE LATE GAEKWAR.—We mentioned the other day that the Ranee of the late Khunderao Gaekwar had preferred a heavy claim against H H. Malharao. A vernacular contemporary now gives out that the Maharaja has amicably settled the claim of the Ranee.

THE GRANT ROAD POISONING CASE.—Mr. A. G. DeGa, book-keeper to Messrs. Forbes and Co., who partook of a portion of a poisoned cake sent as a present to his brother, died at Bandora yesterday morning. This makes four deaths resulting from the dastardly crime.

AMUSEMENT FOR THE RAJAHS.—The albums of photographs and several illustrated works belonging to the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society have been furnished to the Hon. Mr. Tucker at his temporary residence in the new Secretariat premises, for the amusement and edification of the Rajahs and Chiefs who visit the hon. gentleman.

PROGRAMME OF MUSIC to be played by the band of H. M.'s 19th Regiment on the Esplanade band-stand this evening :—

March	John Brown	Riviere.
Overture	Barber of Seville	Rossini.
Quadrille	Royal Boudoir	Coote.
Selection	Geneive de Brebant	Offenbach.

THE RAJA OF BHOWNUGGUR.—On Thursday morning last, about 9 o'clock, the Raja of Bhownuggur visited Mr. Byramjee Jeejeebhoy, ex-member of the local Legislative Council, at his residence on the Breach Candy Road. Mr. Byramjee had invited several of his friends to be present on the occasion. His Highness was presented by Mr. Byramjee with some valuable presents. The interview lasted about an hour.

We have been requested to notify that a copy of a memorial, which we publish in another column, is placed for signatures in the Native General Library at the Framjee Cowasjee Institute, Dhobee Talao. It is to be the memorial, as it purports, of those only who choose to sign it. We learn that a Goozerathi version is being extensively circulated in the native town for the information of people who do not understand English.

THE BENCH OF JUSTICES' ADDRESS TO THE VICEROY.—We understand that this morning at nine o'clock His Excellency the Governor-General will receive a deputation of Her Majesty's Bench of Justices, who will present the congratulatory address which they agreed to some time ago. It is expected that other Justices besides the deputation who can find it convenient to attend will do so; but perhaps they had better be at Government House by a quarter to nine.

POONA.—The weather in Poona just now is charming. The nights are positively cold, and the evenings and mornings cool and pleasant. The middle of the day is complained of, but we feel no inconvenience whatever from it. We never think of the heat, which shows that it is not very great. Preparations are being made for the gaieties that are expected. House property is looking up; we are told that two bungalows are already taken by Rajahs who are coming here to meet the Viceroy. A bungalow opposite the Sassoon Hospital has been taken by his Highness the Rajah of Kolapore and tents are being pitched in the compound for the accommodation of his retinue; another one belonging to Mr. Mahomed Sedeik has been taken for another Rajah, and we hear that others are applying for accommodation and that high rents will probably be realized. Several carriage owners have let out their carriages to Rajahs now in Bombay and are making a good thing of it.—Deccan Herald.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY AND THE NATIVE CHIEFS.

YESTERDAY His Excellency the Governor-General must have found his position no sinecure. The following programme of ceremonies observed on the occasion of the private reception of the Princes, Chiefs, and Sirdars, who were assembled to meet His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General at Bombay, will amply show this :—

At 7-30 A.M. His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India received His Highness Maharaja Sindiah, G.C.S.I., at a private Durbar. The Maharaja was accompanied by nine of his principal Sirdars and by the Political Agent at Gwalior, and was escorted from his residence by a party of the Viceroy's body-guard. After a few minutes' conversation, the attendant Sirdars were introduced by the Under-Secretary and presented the usual nuzzurs, which were touched and remitted.

Uttur and pan were then given to the Maharaja by the Viceroy himself. The Foreign Secretary presented uttur and pan to the principal attendant Sirdars, and the Under-Secretary to the others.

On the departure of the Maharaja, the Viceroy conducted His Highness to the edge of the carpet; the Foreign Secretary, the Agent to the Governor-General, and an Aide-de-Camp accompanied His Highness to his carriage; the Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department, and an Aide-de-Camp to a distance of 500 yards from Government House, and the party of the Viceroy's body-guard as far as His Highness's residence.

A salute of 19 guns was fired on the arrival and departure of the Maharaja; and a guard of honour consisting of a company of European Infantry, with band and colours, was drawn up in front of Government House, and presented arms as the Maharaja passed. A band was also in attendance outside the audi-nce chamber.

At 8 A. M. His Excellency received H. H. the Raja of Kohlapore; at 8-30 A. M. His Highness the Maharaja of Travancore, G.C.S.I.; and at 9 A. M. Her Highness the Begum of Bhopal. The ceremonies were in all respects similar to those observed at the reception of Maharaja Sindiah, except in the matter of the Political Officers who were present. The Begum of Bhopal on presentation offered a nuzzur of 151 gold mohurs, which was touched and remitted.

At 9-30 A. M. His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General received His Highness the Maharaja of Rewah at a private Durbar. A salute of 17 guns was fired on the arrival and departure of the Maharaja, and a guard of honour, consisting of a company of European Infantry, with colours, was drawn up at the entrance of Government House.

At 11 A.M. His Excellency received His Highness the Rao of Kutch, and at 11-20 His Excellency Sir Salar Jung. At 11-40 A.M. he received the Nawab of Jowra. A salute of 13 guns was fired on the arrival and departure of the Nawab, and a guard of honour, consisting of a company of Native Infantry, was drawn up at the entrance of Government House, and presented arms as His Highness passed. A band was also in attendance.

At noon His Excellency received His Highness the Nawab of Joonaghur, K.C.S.I.; at 12-15 His Highness the Thakoor Sahib of Bhownuggar; at 12-45 His Highness the Raj Sahib of Drangdra; and at 1 P.M. His Highness the Rajah of Rajpeepla.

At 1-15 P. M. His Excellency received His Highness the Jam of Nowanuggur; at 12-30 their Highnesses the Rajas of Barria and of Loonawara, and at 1-40 the Nawab of Balasinore. At 1-50 P.M. he received the Nawab of Junje

BRUTALITY.

A short time ago we had occasion to deprecate the too frequent and severe use of the lash in India. We calmly gave utterance to our sincerest thoughts on the subject, as we thought thereby some good might result and some considerations of mercy might be instilled into the minds of those in India—especially Jail Superintendents—who have caught the infection, so to speak, of over severity in the administration of corporal punishment. A writer to the Madras Mail, whose letter the editor of that journal thinks of sufficient weight to give great prominence to, attacks us in yesterday evening's issue so wildly and with such a confusion of ratiocination and language, that we cannot now afford the space to pull to pieces his tangled web of fallacies. Suffice it for the present to say that he accuses us of "sensationalism," when we simply tried to point out that a little more leniency in our treatment of our Indian subjects was desirable! If we erred, which we deny, we erred on the side of moderation and humanity. Whilst we stated our clear belief that corporal punishments were frequently beneficial, whilst we said that "flogging was often more useful as a deterrent punishment than imprisonment," and whilst we only raised our parable against the pernicious extreme use of a remedy which is salutary when moderately employed, we are accused of not having any "regard for facts," of a "love of sensationalism," and that this has marked "all the efforts of the new editor to write up his depressed paper." The answer to this we simply leave for the present, to each and every one of our reader's minds, consciences, and convictions of justice. Let us, however, remark briefly that ere the Mail was conceived the Athenæum was in its prime; and that it shows a peculiar consciousness of rottenness and decline about a journal to accuse a veteran contemporary of being "written up." There is a "weakness in the knees," an evident feeling of growing personal debility, in a newspaper which affects to ascribe success in a rival to sensationalism.

To say that frothy sensational writing, and not calm argument, succeeds with the Anglo-Indian public, is to pay a very poor compliment indeed to a land into which the best intellects of Britain are annually grafted.—Madras Athenæum.

OUR NAVY.

(Pall Mall Budget, Oct. 25.)

Mr. Reed, in one of his letters to the Times, declares that two years ago the English iron-clad navy was so strong as to secure for us not only a first place in Europe, but a place probably superior, in a relative sense, to any which England had previously held for some generations past. That position was owing to the policy which had been pursued of continual progress, but that policy, Mr. Reed asserts, has ceased to be followed. Instead of it, "the energies of the Admiralty, the labour of the dockyards, and the moneys voted by Parliament have been entirely consumed during Mr. Goschen's term of office in finishing the ships which others began, in altering many of them, and in building small vessels which, however valuable as adjuncts to a powerful navy, are ridiculous when made to take the place of such a navy." Mr. Reed at some length contrasts with this state of things the course which has been pursued by other countries, and looking at the powerful iron-clad navies which are rising up around us, he asserts that "not only the lead in the race, but the practicability of competing in the race, is slipping away from us. While in settled times, when no great changes are made in ships, superiority lies mainly in numbers, in these times of rapid change superiority lies mainly in the growing power of individual ships, and while even a single Power may easily surpass you, the simultaneous construction of very powerful ships in several navies may rapidly jeopardise your position." What, then, are our nearest rivals about?

In North Germany the recent Prussian policy of building up a powerful navy of iron-clads is being pursued more vigorously than ever. In Russia they have already surpassed us, both in the power of actual ships and in the use of new methods of construction. The Peter the Great, a ship perfectly capable of steaming into English ports, is a more powerful ship than any we possess; and the construction of circular ironclads, whether an exaggeration of shortness in ships or not, is most undoubtedly a means of putting afloat, and sending to sea, far thicker armour and heavier guns than we possess. I am not certain that we shall find it desirable to go so far in the direction of broad wing our ships as the Russians have gone, but I am perfectly certain of three things:—1. That, as armour and guns increase, we shall have to shorten and broaden our armour-clad ships much more than hitherto; 2, that the Russians are acquiring enormous offensive and defensive naval power by pushing this principle more than we; and 3, that we are at present making no provision for this further change, but are industriously building docks at Chatham and Portsmouth which will have to be pulled to pieces almost as soon as built, if this change comes about. I may add another thing—if Russia pursues her present naval policy rigorously, and we pursue ours (such as it now is), we shall never dare again to send hostile ships into her waters, nor will any neighbouring Power succeed by means of her ships in keeping Russia out. Let me further state that other Powers beside Russia are building ships capable of competing with the most powerful of ours, and the Superb, which is some day to be begun at Chatham, is already surpassed in power, even by countries that have no European interests of moment to protect. In short, while we are standing comparatively still half a dozen other Powers are making the most rapid and, surprising advances, and for the first time since the introduction of armour, are surrounding us with ships more powerful, both cruising and non-cruising, than even the most powerful of our own.

Mr. Reed goes on to remark that the satisfactory condition of things when he quitted office was due to the personal urgency of the Controller and himself, but he asks, "who is to push Mr. Goschen and his naval colleagues forward?" The effect of recent changes in the Admiralty is to put all the authority in the hands of "a political chief of whom it can be no offence to say that he is no more fit of himself to lead the great naval service of England onward in the right path and at the right speed, as regards its naval constructions, than he is to lead the law or the Church," and yet "Mr. Goschen is the one man to whom, and to whom alone, we can as a nation look even for permission to retain our power at sea." In a second letter Mr. Reed says that to his mind the duty of the Government is clear. "Let it freely recognize the new and unexampled state of things that exists—three wasted years on our part; three years of unwonted activity on the part of several other Powers; and, as a consequence, the urgent necessity for a very large present increase of strength, both as regards masted and as regards mastless ironclads. It will be hard for them to condemn already their new designs; but it will be far better to condemn and amend them now than to see them condemned hereafter when amendment is impossible. It is not for me to prescribe the nature of the changes which have to be made beyond saying that where armour is to be trusted to it must be thickened by many inches beyond what I left it two-and-a-half years ago. That this can be done I know; that the Admiralty constructors can do it I firmly believe. To fail to do it is to abandon naval pre-eminence to other nations and to place this country at their mercy."

The statements made in these letters have excited a good deal of discussion. Some of the Ministerial papers insinuate that Mr. Reed's onslaught on the Admiralty is merely a "vindictive display of personal feeling," and assert that Mr. Reed himself is, on his own showing, as much responsible for the alleged deficiencies and defects of our iron-clad navy as are the present Admiralty authorities. A letter which has appeared in the Times in leader type, signed "Trafalgar," referring to the Russian ship Peter the Great, which Mr. Reed points out as superior to any vessel in our navy, says that Mr. Reed did not begin his Thunder and Devastation until a year after the Peter the Great was designed, nor his Fury until two years after. If therefore, anybody is to blame for Russia taking the lead of us in this matter, it is Mr. Reed and his coadjutors, rather than the present Admiralty officials. But the writer goes on to observe, the precise qualities of this formidable vessel have yet to be proved. At present she has neither engines nor armour, and her fighting and steaming qualities remain to be tested. The conclusion arrived at is that there is nothing in the condition of the other navies of Europe to give us reasonable grounds for uneasiness.

ADVERTISING AT RAILWAY STATIONS.
THE Proprietor of the "Bombay Gazette" Press having leased (among other privileges) from the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company, and the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway Company, the exclusive right of advertising at all the Railway Stations belonging to these two Companies, is prepared to contract with parties desirous of posting Notices or Advertisements on the lines.
The announcements may be in English or in any of the Native languages.
The advantages which Railway Stations present as a means no bringing intimations of all kinds before the Public have been demonstrated in England by the extensive use which is made by Advertisers, of every station, great and small, along every line in the United Kingdom.
Insurance Companies, Shipping Companies, Hotel-keepers, Merchants, Traders, and others who wish to force their business on the notice of the Public, all alike value the privilege of Railway Station Advertising.
There is no reason why the privilege should not be also specially valuable to Advertisers in India. Looking to the great and increasing number of Native Railway Passengers on the two trunk lines of Western India, native merchants, traders, &c., seeing that they have the privilege of advertising in their own language, would find the publication of their announcement at Railway Stations a decided means of extending their business.
And as nearly ALL TRAVELLERS ARRIVING IN INDIA NOW LAND AT BOMBAY, and proceed by the G. I. P. or B. B. and C. I. Railways to their destination, Placards exhibited at the different Stations on those lines are every day becoming more and more valuable as means of bringing the Advertisers' business to the notice of the Public.
Advertisers can select the Stations, on either line, at which they wish their Placards posted, and may advertise for any period that may be agreed on. The charges have been fixed on an extremely moderate scale to encourage Advertisers to make a liberal use of the new means now offered of making announcements known to the Public.
Placards, according to the taste of Advertisers, may be printed at the "Bombay Gazette" Press.

COPPER-PLATE PRINTING,
ENGRAVING, &c.
VISITING CARDS, Invitation Cards, Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Cheques, Bills of Lading, Office and Bank Seals, Seals for Stamping Envelopes, &c., engraved to order, and at moderate prices.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.

All with the CORK are SPURIOUS IMITATIONS. This notice is deemed necessary, as the Proprietors have received intimation that a large quantity of Counterfeit, of the most pernicious quality, has lately been sent from France and Germany to India, South America and the Colonies under their names.
A BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION

During the heat and dust of Summer especially, and in cases of Sunburn and STINGS of INSECTS it is of the utmost use. Price 4s. 6d. and 8s. 6d. per bottle. Ask for "Rowlands' Kalydor," and see that their signature is in red ink on every bottle, as theirs is the only genuine.

ROWLAN S' ODONTO, or Pearl Dentifrice, preserves and imparts a pearl-like whiteness to the teeth, eradicates tartar and spots of incipient decay, strengthens the gums, and gives a pleasing fragrance to the breath. Price 2s. 9d. per box. Ask for "Rowlands' Odonto," and see that their name is on the Government Stamp of every box.
ROWLANDS' ESSENCE OF TYRE

All these articles have been used and justly appreciated by all the Sovereigns and Courts of Europe, the Pope of Rome, and the aristocracy of the world, during the last seventy years, being of inestimable value to those who have caused them. They are sold by all Chemists, Perfumers and Bazaars throughout India, the Colonies and South America.
